Matters arising

Chairman Patel debriefs bedroom technique

Congratulations to Hemin Patel, who played his 200th game (Bricklayer's Arms in July), celebrating with off-colour quips and two wickets. He now has 280 wickets at 4.8 rpo and a strike rate of 20.

332 appearances Sanjay Patel
242 Stuart Snelling
218 Tony Buck
211 Andrew Burman
203 Hemin Patel

On the same afternoon club treasure Vijay Basker became the 24th. player to score 1,000 runs for the Gents. To date he has 1,070 in 41 games at an average of 28.92. Of players with 30 or more games, only three players have a better average: Nabil Husain (61 games, 2,270 runs @ 49.35), Jonny Small (52 games, 1,332 runs @ 31.09) and Mark Ashton (153 games, 3,848 runs @ 30.54). He is in exalted company.

Sachin Desai has been tearing it up for Knockholt in the Kent County Village League Div. 4. He has 20 wickets so far, his best return a match-winning 5 for 20 against Weald. We look forward to seeing him for the last three Gents games.

Gent 155 featured Shenley Cricket Centre, which the Gents will visit on 3 September and will be the only first-class venue to host us. You may ask about Chiswick Park, which saw first-class games in 1886 (CI Thornton's XI v. Australians) and 1887 (Middlesex v. Oxford University). Did the Gents not play there? Well no, the Chiswick Park ground was demolished after WW2. We played at nearby Chiswick House.

Hale have responded to the Gents' complaint about the cancellation of the 18 June fixture. The reason they could not raise a team is that "they did not have enough players, which was because "availability was poor". Drilling down, this was apparently "for a number of reasons". Thanks for those insights, chaps. To rub it in, Hale's Giles and Weaver scored freely in the Crown Taverners fixture. The return at Hale must be in doubt. We are liaising with them.

The home games against Battersea Eagles and Judd Street Tigers were rained off by the BBC's jetstream, as were the 2012 and 2015 Tigers games. This was particularly unfortunate as both games were oversubscribed by Gents and opponents. The Tigers clash might have been a classic – they had Neepam Bhatt returning to bolster an already strong line up. Perhaps they had studied Geoffrey Boycott's column which lurks behind the Daily Telegraph's Premium paywall: "Brian Close at Yorkshire taught me that on a batting pitch you need an extra bowler, on a bowling pitch you need to select an extra batsman".

Judd Street Tigers are having a rollercoaster season. They ended May won 3 lost 3 before losing seven on the bounce, five after batting first and three after posting 200 plus scores. Their turning point was the abandonment against South East Challengers, since when they have enjoyed three close victories. Chris Wright went into the bank holiday break with 476 runs. If The Sun is to be believed Railway Taverners are readying a £45m deadline day bid for wantaway ace Steve Bignell while Winchmore Hill are set for talks with Chris Dane, who recently denounced his club's wages structure in an explosive interview.

Time for action

Bocha, Caveney, Chatharaju, Desai, Dubey, Francis, Hibbert, Kumar, Newcombe, S Patel, Pentakota and Small: a very solid side chockful of experience. The more observant reader will be ahead of the editor by now, for not one of these players was available for the bank holiday game. No blame attaches, impending babies, work, holidays and health come first, but it does show the challenge facing the club in 2017 in fielding full teams. Forty-one players have already turned out with many changes in the run up to the game, a nightmare for the captain. Hats off to Ahmed, Bandla and Basker who brought in guests to play Brick. The timed format - a concept misunderstood by some - worked well this year thanks to a generous declaration by Vamsee Krishna that set up an exciting conclusion. We mention Poulter's sporting retirement in the match report. He did the same thing against Ashford in May. A day later Joe Root showed what he had learned with a similarly fair declaration against West Indies.

Sly Carew

Another declaration story, this time from Welsh league cricket. The Pembroke County Cricket top-tier title has been won by Carew by one point, after losing to rivals Cresselly in their final match having come in 21 points clear of them and with 20 points for a win. The final standing was 377pts to 376pts in Carew's favour at the end of the 18-match season. What stirred up enough controversy to get the event reported on the BBC Sport website is how the entire match lasted fewer than five overs. Carew had done their arithmetic ahead of the game, and elected to deny Cresselly the chance of adding any bonus points to their tally (one bowling point awarded for every two wickets taken in an innings, one batting point for every 40 runs scored, up to a maximum of five) by declaring on 18 for 1 after just 15 balls. Cresselly then duly knocked off this target inside two overs for the win, but had no chance of taking the title. Moral outrage has been all over social media yet there has been little comment on Cresswell's decision on winning the toss to bowl. Had they batted the shenanigans could have been avoided. We also note that the Sheffield Shield had to rejig their bonus points as they used to give the final bowling one for the 10th wicket so teams just declared after the 9th.

Next train's gone

Spare a thought for young Australian quick James Royal of Clapham In, seen here with an extremely necessary flak jacket. He works on the railways as a Customer Service Manager and we think it right to raise a matter of national importance here.

The biggest problem caused by the Waterloo upgrade, and one of the top three problems facing the country, is the paucity of gentlemen's washrooms on the commute home from a Gents home game.

Before the upgrade, it was a simple matter to train to Clapham Junction, where there are abundant facilities. Now that station is effectively out of bounds, you have to change at Wimbledon and take the District line to access your homeward train. Fine, except that the Wimbledon washrooms have been out of action since approximately 1985. The editor has to dash out from Earls Court tube and run the gauntlet of knuckle draggers in the Wetherspoon's opposite for relief.

London Saints veteran Tony Grimes has one solution – he goes to matches equipped with an empty wine bottle (with a stopper) for just such emergencies.

Next job

The following job recently came up on-line. The editor of course applied, stressing his bubbly personality. We await developments.

After being run ragged for what seemed 90 overs but what the scorebook confirmed to have been a mere 40, the Gents, missing several prolific batsmen, showed some fight but fell 35 runs short. Only 13 wickets fell and 54 boundaries were struck on a hot, humid day, Joseph Dino Francis hitting a maiden club fifty in only his second game, 74 in 29 overs, with nine fours and a six. Taverners, fielding four first XI players (the opening batsmen, Dominic Day and Cilliers), were a strong, experienced side and held the Gents at bay in the final overs by switching to from spin to pace.

The day started badly when Kumar was delayed and got worse when he had to be helped from the field with a recurrence of his knee injury. While Gents had ten men, Taverners clattered 86 in the first 13 overs before debutant Namilikonda stumped Delaney off Vamsee Krishna. Captain Huntingford was given out lbw off Kumar and hurled a massive purple wobbler that lasted all afternoon. When Bandla got reward for his subtle spell of slow left-arm by bowling Dominic Day, the Gents had hauled themselves back into the game. Then Kumar was injured and in searing heat things rapidly worsened. Giles and Weaver picked off the bowling, and extras, misfields and buzzers mounted despite Namilikonda's stout 'keeping and some neat outfielding from Bandla and Joel Snelling. It was a tired, if not down and out visiting team who took tea. The innings had not been without controversy. The Gents claimed that two thick edges into Namilikonda's gloves were given not out but did not help their cause with too many drops. Bandla and Stuart Snelling, particularly in his second spell, were the pick of the bowlers.

The batsmen then partially atoned on a belting wicket with a fast outfield. Hemin Patel got his batting order right but steered the leg-spinner Grannell to slip second ball, a soft dismissal. Sampath, wielding the BDM, crashed a huge six onto the clubhouse roof as 55 came up for the second wicket in 11 overs. The Gents had high hopes when Francis and Namilikonda added 68 in just 11 more and with 18 left 136 were needed at 7.56. Francis, Sanjay Patel and Caveney hit lustily but Delaney and Dominic Day were quick and the run rate slowed. The Gents sold their wickets dearly to make their second-best chasing score. For their part, Taverners' 258 was the fourth-highest score by any team against the club.

The heat and tension became too much for the Gents' scorer who, like Ishmael in Genesis 16:12, had the hand of every man against him. He made a speech that he immediately regretted but the post-match festivities were pleasant. Hemin Patel was put in a difficult position with Kumar's late arrival and unfortunate injury (he played only 10 overs) but kept a smile on his face. Another much-changed side did themselves justice then with the bat if not the ball and the fixture was retained for 2018.

Should Chandhu Bandla have been given out?

This is clutching at straws and perhaps is not the greatest matter facing Planet Earth but the use of substitute fielders in this game was questionable. Taverners had spares but were within the letter of the law not to offer Gents a fielder when Kumar was carried off injured. However when Grannell left the game at 5.30pm to go to work a beshorted sub was soon on the field, who a few overs later caught Bandla, who was going well, at deep square-leg.

Law 2 (Substitutes and Runners) states:

- (a) If the umpires are satisfied that a nominated player has been injured or become ill since the nomination of the players, they shall allow that player to have a substitute acting for him in the field.
- (b) The umpires shall have discretion to allow, for other wholly acceptable reasons, a substitute fielder to act for a nominated player at the start of the match, or at any subsequent time.

We are persuaded neither that leaving early to go to work is a wholly acceptable reason, nor that the umpires were consulted. Grannell works on the railways. So, why was the 07.46 Heathrow Connect to London Paddington cancelled the next morning unless he was skiving all night?

Taverners' captain Huntingford was an angry man who kicked off with his own team when he was given out lbw. Players have argued with these decisions since the Laws were first codified, but the general principle is that you accept them with a little grace. Instead, Huntingford flung his bat dangerously in the pavilion, likened the umpire and several team-mates to a lady's southerly parts, refuelled with cider (on top of a considerable pre-innings intake), went out to umpire bottle in hand and failed to give the Gents anything all day. Huntingford was playing forward at his demise but this does not obviate the lbw.

A match featuring two excellent, contrasting fifties saw a Gents win by 64 runs. Praveen Bocha made his highest club score, with eight fours and three sixes in a stay of just 19 overs. Brick's Poulter (85 against the Gents in August 2016) batted the full 35 for a marathon 71 not out. He scored six fours but only one in his first 42 runs as Brick stalled after a bright start. The difference between the sides was the momentum in the middle overs. Basker, Sampath, Pentakota and Caveney merrily put bat to ball while Brick were stifled by the Gents' spinners and, as we shall see, the weather.

Naveed Khan and Raja Pentakota made welcome returns and the Gents seemed focussed from ball one, despite regrettable black trousering from Basker and navy blue shirting from Namilikonda. Hemin Patel swished over a straight one in the third over but the stand of 81 between Sampath (five fours and a six) and Bocha took only 13 overs and put the Gents on top. Although Pentakota was run out after a misunderstanding, the rest of the middle order got among the runs in support of the fluent Bocha. It was the fastest outfield seen at Old Tenisonians in 2017 and the Gents took advantage. Brick stuck to their guns well but some big shots and sterling running saw a healthy total. Bocha was outstanding.

Skipper Watson had requested a timed game and will have every right to insist on one in the return fixture. His batsmen played well but were unable to force the necessary pace. Gents fans would cite here fine spells from Chatharaju, Krishna and Bandla, allied to tremendous catching from Pentakota (one diving forward at fly-slip, one one-handed at long-on and a safe pouch at deep square-leg) but there was another reason. The outfield had slowed considerably. The late afternoon was muggy and moisture was sucked up to the surface, slowing it. On at least six occasions the scorers prepared to annotate a four only to have to downgrade the official record to a two as the ball died and was retrieved.

Poulter was impenetrable but needed support. Mercer and Mamoon hit hard but it became too tough a challenge. Chatharaju, a bowler transformed, and Krishna, unplayable in these conditions on a ground he knows well, swung the ball a foot and a half. Bocha then brought the spinners on, who took a brace each and paid fewer than three runs per over. The game meandered before Poulter came out of his shell against the occasional bowlers, 20 of his last 29 coming in boundaries as various bowlers came and went. It was a sterling effort. Brick's captain said after that had it been a timed game his side would have ended on a similar score. A word here on his supportive captaincy. No less a judge than Naveed Khan noticed how he encouraged his fielders when the twos and fours were flying. You could see young Sohaib grow a foot after a clean interception and accurate, bullet throw had stopped a second and he was rewarded with a public hail of approval.

Brick's match report

A lovely ground, congenial opposition and a quite magnificent tea – but we still can't beat the Gentlemen of West London.

On a cloudy day we were as happy to bowl first as they were to bat. Muhammad Sohaib immediately found pace and swing, striking in the third over to take Hemin Patel's leg stump off a thin inside edge, but Tom Poulter was luckless with two drops at long-on. The second wicket stand went from 9 to 90 before Hassaan Mamoon bowled Basker in the 16th over. Returning Young's veteran Tony Nabo now had No.3 Sampath plumb lbw, while Hassaan ran out Pentakota on his follow-through to put us back in contention at 132 for 4.

However captain Praveen Bocha was in full flow, hitting powerfully and aerially to crank up the run rate. Sohaib returned to remove his partner Namilikonda lbw on leg stump, then Ian Watson saw Tom Poulter take a thick edge at point to dispatch Caveney. But even a stone-cold stumping couldn't see off the skipper as the umpire was looking at his mobile phone at the time – something for which the Gents apologised handsomely afterwards. Alvin Spencer did pick up his final partner Khan in the last over to leave the Gents at 224 for 7 – six and a third an over for us to chase.

After the stupendous tea Tom Poulter and Charlie Mercer accumulated steadily, but it was already noticeable than rising temperatures had brought up the moisture in the outfield, with balls which had raced way for the Gents now stopping two yards short. That and good chasing in the field kept the rate down, but a good platform had been laid by the time on 46 that Charlie edged Krishna to a deep slip Pentakota for 21. Hassaan now found the boundary equally hard to reach, then was bowled by a Bandla grubber for 14 on 74.

This was the key part of the game as the Gents' slow bowlers Bandla and Hemin Patel took charge. Ian Watson spooned to cover Hemin Patel for a five-ball duck, while Sohaib's attempt to break the shackles ended on the hands of long-on. All the while Tom Poulter had been advancing steadily to his fifty, though with only one boundary in his first 41 runs. Two more interspersed with a three took him to the half-century as Alvin Spencer was caught at cow corner by Pentakota off Bandla.

The Gents' spinners had well and truly slammed the brakes on, their 12 overs costing just 35 between them, taking the asking rate out of reach. Tony Nabo and Tom put on 40 before Tony was bowled Chatharaju for 10, and Tom finished with a flourish of three fours as he carried his bat for 71, but we were well beaten and well short at the end.

Mithali's matchday read

Who's this tucking into The Essential Rumi, an anthology of ©13 Sufi poet Jalāl ad-Dīn Muhammad Rūmī? Why, it's Indian women's cricket captain Mithali Raj.

On the seeker's path, wise men and fools are one.
In His love, brothers and strangers are one.
Go on! Drink the wine of the Beloved!
In that faith, Muslims and pagans are one.

We can reveal that the literary tastes of the Gents are not restricted to Tuffers' Cricket Tales and ghosted biogs of Premiership footballers. Raja Pentakota's mother is an eminent Indian poet and a Gent off-spinner's first novel will be published soon. See What I Did is a whimsical tale of a troubled loner who achieves redemption through the purchase of a pair of preloved Superdry trackies. Despite being all covered in spunk, they confer magic powers and help him gain confidence.

An exciting day, honoured with appearances by injured Gents' skipper Kumar and loyal supporter Mickey Mouse, saw two narrow Gents' victories against Pak, who should have won the second game after a brave fightback. There were 504 runs scored, 30 wickets taken and 80.1 overs bowled with wides and no balls added back. Quite an inventory of events, but there was no need for play to have gone on until 8pm when the terms of booking required a finish by 7. Great fun was had though and players and spectators responded generously to the appeal for Cancer Research.

Pak are an occasional team with some handy cricketers. The Gents have had the better of the series in recent years which as they play regularly is no surprise, but T20 is supposed to be a great leveller and so it proved here. In the first game The Gents plodded to 60 for 5 off 14 overs before the excellent Ahmed, Sanjay Patel and Chatharaju, running like teenagers and biffing the ball to all corners, doubled the score in the final six. Left-hander Khalid Butt and Naveed Khan then put up 36 untroubled runs in only 5.3 overs to put Pak in a strong position, but Dubey, Bocha and Pentakota strangled the middle order, Hemin Patel and Bocha (one-handed) taking the pick of the catches in the deep. Mickey Mouse made his first appearance when Bocha was on strike. In spite of no prior agreement to the free-hit rule umpire Basker decided to implement it anyway, signalling one after a foot-fault no ball by extending one arm straight upwards and moving it in a circular motion, which was capable of another interpretation. At 71 for 9 off 15.2 overs victory for the Gents seemed inevitable, but skipper Khurshid Ahmed and the denim-shirted Maani had other ideas, adding 36 in 29 balls to take their side close. It had been a close-run thing, but it was the second game that would set the pulses racing.

It was an oddball classic that started quietly before building to a crescendo. The Gents showed good judgement compiling 141 in their 18 overs. Dhanu Gola batted 11 overs for his 36, Sanjay Patel and Bocha smashed it around and the running between the wickets showed a marked improvement on the previous innings. Pak dropped a lot of catches, but ran hard. Aamir Ahmed was bowled by his namesake.

Aamir Ahmed was lbw to Pentakota 11th. ball which set up a fine stand between S Ahmed and Butt, 57 in 8.4 overs. With Dubey's injury the tide was turning towards Pak before three spectacular catches in quick succession rolled it back. Dino Francis obliged Bocha twice in three balls at deep mid-wicket the over after long-on Pentakota had taken his fifth of the season in only four matches. Sixty-seven were now needed in seven overs.

Mickey Mouse had been rehearsing for a few minutes and now entered stage left. The mind of Vijaya Bhasakar Palavelli Reddy is a wondrous thing. He had fielded for Pak due to Bashir's early departure for a sitar recital, and a seed of an idea was planted; why not shapeshift into a batsman? This he did without a murmur to either captain, to the delight of one and the chagrin of the other, moving from long-on to behind the boundary and re-emerging padded up a minute later to smash the bowling about. It was epic.

His appearance with Dan Khan turned the match on its head. Some of the best running seen all season coupled with the occasional boundary brought Pak to 129 for 4 off 16 overs after a partnership of 54 in 5. Thirteen were needed off 2 overs. Cue much discussion and advice from the boundary. Bocha weighed it all up and decided on Pentakota and Gola. The superb Pentakota bowled the penultimate, off which six runs came but crucially three wickets fell. Khan was bowled off the first ball, Maani took a single followed by two Basker twos. Maani was run out going for a second after a perfect throw by deep extra-cover Chatharaju. Basker was then stumped off the final ball. There was some comment about his swapping sides but his presence in the late order certainly livened up the game.

Naveed Khan and his skipper were the right navigators to steer the ship to harbour but Khan was run out by Gola off his own bowling first ball. Young A Khan had put in a good shift fielding for the Gents after Dubey's departure but could not connect with the ball in order to give his captain the strike. One felt for him. Gola had his maiden and the Gents the game.

Could do better

The run up to the game and its aftermath showed both good and bad. The kit had languished under house arrest at Old Tenisonians since 16 July, pending the next two (cancelled) home games. Members correctly identified the problem and then splendidly tried to solve it by bombarding each other with dozens of emails saying "Somebody needs to pick it up". Of course nobody did. Thanks are due to those, including the oppo, who lent their own kit.

There was shock the following Tuesday when fines were levied by the ground authority of £20 for an hour's overrun and £18.90 for fielding the strewn litter. Eagle-eyed observers will easily be able to identify from the groundsman's photo water bottles, foil containers and tissues. Pity the wildlife chomping on those decaying vada pavs. Bring the 4 by 4s, caravans and lucky heather next time so we can look the part.

Did well

There is no need to repeat here why Cancer Research is the Gents' charity of choice. Nor are we going to divulge who paid what. Suffice it to say that every player and spectator contributed as, generously, did Pak. The first foul-mouthed tirade (a money-spinning category on the day) was logged just 12 overs in when a Gent, unhappy about the slow progress being made by the batsmen, loudly detonated the C-bomb. He happily paid his fiver. Another player's spirited and sustained abuse of an opponent - Naveed Khan - cost him a tenner. One absentee paid £10, comfortable in the knowledge that he would have questioned a few umpire's decisions. Individual donations totalled £350, to which was added a club contribution of £82 based on total runs scored and extras. A sum of £432 was therefore remitted.

Northfields won comfortably, and deservedly. Both sides recovered after losing early wickets but the Gents could produce nothing to rival the match-winning stand of 76 between Singh and Kent, melting down to 67 for 8 before a late recovery. Northfields sold their wickets more dearly than their hosts, although both sides were up to the mark in the bowling and fielding.

The Patels were well represented. Dhruv and son Dhilan played for the Gents, Ketan Patel's son Bhuv for Northfields. Bhuv is enjoying fizzing his off-breaks for Park Hill in the Surrey Cricket League and his progress was evident.

Early successes were the Gents'. Pentakota gained the first of five lbws upheld on a low, slow pitch. Bocha smartly caught and bowled Derrick Redhead, who had laced back a c&b in the second over but was relieved by the umpire's decision of a bump ball. Khan (twice, including the 2016 centurion David Redhead for a duck) and Chatharaju struck and the visitors were 38 for 5. Singh and Kent batted sensibly for 16 overs before Kent drove Pentakota to a diving Bocha at mid-off. Bhuv Patel was gone two balls later and successes for Dhruv Patel and, in his first bowl for the club, Namilikonda, reduced Northfields to 142 for 9. Egan and Dhuna saw up 161 a little too easily. The total was heinously inflated by 5 penalty runs when the ball hit the 'keeper's helmet. Pentakota was pick of the bowlers.

It was a par score but such was the Gents' shot selection that it proved out of reach by a distance. Basker edged his second ball behind, the first of Egan's quartet, and Sampath drove over a straight one from the left-armed Kent. Egan had Chakravarty and Dhilan Patel in his fourth over. Some batting broke out when Francis, in a 20- over dig, and Khan showed the necessary application but their dismissals brought a clutch of wickets including a Hibbert hole-out to deep mid-wicket second ball. The position looked hopeless after Pentakota's resistance was ended but Bocha, batting late due to an injury incurred while fielding, struck five fours to take the Gents over the ton. Bhuv Patel ended the match by following in his father's footsteps with a sensational direct hit run out from third man as Bocha was venturing a second.

The captain had a good day. He bowled accurately, fielded tirelessly then gave his club a scintilla of hope of an unlikely win. But he couldn't do it all on his own. The disappointment was not that the team lost, but that several batsmen ignored sound advice about how to tackle what was not an insuperable task.

The Gents' persistent inability to chase even moderate totals was therefore exposed again. Not since 2010 have Gents successfully chased a bigger total (196 for 5 by Close PF in a frankly bizarre T20). Since then, opponents have totalled 155 or more 22 times. Of these games, the Gents have drawn three (two by abandonment) and lost 19.

What a dramatic game this was, the Gents impressively hunting down 173 to win with 4 wickets and 23 balls to spare, the first successful chase in eight games. The top four took responsibility, something that captain and vice-captain have been screaming about for weeks. Clapham In fought like devils but had the worse of the conditions, having to bowl the final overs in persistent rain dumped by Hurricane Gert. There was nothing between the sides and refreshingly no controversy. There were passages of brilliant cricket, two fine innings, two dismissals of international calibre and moments of complete lunacy.

Pentakota's outswinger demolished Gregory's stumps first ball of the match. Robbins (dropped in the third over at mid-wicket and slip soon after) and Ferreira slowly rebuilt until Krishna, bowling as well as he ever has, pinned Ferreira. Bocha struck with his seventh and tenth balls to have Curtis and Shinner, caught mid-on and at the wicket. Bocha then ran out Jameson with a brilliant direct hit throw from cover. Seven days before Northfields' sixth-wicket stand won them the match. As Stern and Frecknall gave the increasingly assertive Robbins staunch support here it looked as if history might be repeated. Bandla then had Stern and Khan deceived Robbins to end his fine, if not chanceless innings (four fours and two sixes). It was clever thinking. Khan tossed up a high leg-break which surprised Robbins, who guided it gently to slip. Krishna struck with successive balls but Frecknall was afire, hitting six fours and taking advantage of several buzzers before Hibbert's loopy off-spin got him. Clapham In's very fair umpires upheld three lbw appeals. They were favourites at tea.

All season the Gents have struggled with their opening partnerships. Too many have been tried up top but few have succeeded, Jonny Small being greatly missed. How refreshing it is, therefore, to record a brisk stand of 58 in only eight overs. Sampath and Basker are big chaps and attacked with ferocity, Sampath hitting Gregory over the fence and onto a shed roof in Tennyson Gardens. He fell off strike and soon perished to a neat catch at mid-off in the ninth over.

Basker, while never spurning the drive and cut (he hit four fours and two maxima), glued the innings together for 23 overs. He and Pentakota brought up the hundred in the 20th. over. The pacy Australian James Royal wanted to bowl with an old ball and one could see why. In six high-class overs he started to demolish the middle order by pinning Pentakota. Basker was caught magnificently off Jameson by a diving, twisting Robbins at long-off a yard inside the boundary, the catch of the season. Royal then blew away Ahmed and Caveney. Gents had stumbled from 100 for 1 to 116 for 5 with 11 overs to go. Bocha then attacked imperiously for seven overs. Royal got him to end with 4 for 26. The teams had fought each other to a standstill but there was still time for a sight to gladden the hearts of Gents supporters. Chandhu Bandla and Horace Hibbert seized the moment, punching 36 runs off 31 balls, the game sealed with five wides from Robbins, the ball crashing into the fence in front of the groundsman's cottage. Twenty-two men had put their heart and soul into a fine game and it was a pity that one side had to lose.

An epic game ended in a draw after Bricklayer's Arms batted 44 overs in searing heat falling 19 runs shy of the Gents' 200. Earlier, captain Vamsee Krishna had declared after just 25.2 overs. There was much for the statistician to get his teeth into including two hundreds and two century stands but this game will forever be remembered for Poulter's retirement after reaching his hundred when there was no instruction from his captain to do so. It was a splendid act of sportsmanship.

This Gents side was denuded of many regulars and hence much altered for the bank holiday weekend. There were debuts for Chandhu Bandla's friend Uday Basker and Aamir Ahmed's friend from Wycombe House and captain of their IIs, Vasi Shaikh. Upendar Sanga and Nagaraju Chalamalasetti, whom Krishna knows well from his T20 forays, had only played once before. The captain also had to consider a possible declaration and events proved his judgement correct.

Gents batted by agreement and lost Basker neatly caught behind fifth ball. Sampath picked out cover in the sixth over whereupon the runs flowed from Sanga (13 fours and two sixes), Ahmed (eight fours) and Chalamalasetti (three fours and a six). Ahmed and Sanga retired after reaching their personal milestones, Poulter later citing this as a precedent. Brick went 18.2 overs without taking a wicket during which 163 runs came up in a torrent on a hard, true pitch and fast outfield. The first innings was to comprise a maximum of two hours ten minutes' batting, the second an hour plus 20 overs, plus any time saved by an early declaration. Krishna declared with 24 minutes unused which were therefore added to Brick's innings. As it transpired, Brick bowled their overs at 14 an hour, the Gents 18. The Gents could therefore have faced a maximum of 31 overs which would have then given Brick 38 and arguably no option but to play for the draw chasing, say, 250.

Poulter and Tremain played shots all round the ground in their excellent stand. Krishna had spinners aplenty – they would bowl 23 overs – but lacked seamers. There was little turn so just as the Gents' destructive trio had done, Brick's openers punched their ones and twos and picked off the loose ball without mercy. Shaikh was the pick of the seamers, bowling 13 overs in three spells, Bandla was accurate but it was Sanga with his slow left-arm who broke through when Tremain popped one up in his fourth over, the 24th of the innings.

Brick then needed 90 to win in 20 overs. Foister joined in the fun and Poulter proceeded to an excellent century with 13 fours in the 35th over, the score 153 for 2, 48 needed in 10. After his retirement the run rate slowed as Shaikh and Sanga delivered great final spells, supported by improved outcricket. Three wickets fell on 157 and the middle order had too much to do. Honours were even at the end, the unanswerable question being "Would Brick have won had Poulter stayed in?" We will never know although Brick were quite open about their chance of victory being predicated on his presence at the crease. Sanga's career bowling analysis for GWLCC now reads 16-5-39-10 although it will be recalled that two of his six against Pak in 2016, Harris and Kevin, were spectators keen to have a bat.

Guest Upender Sanga became the club's 13th centurion and only the second to take four wickets in the same game. Mark Ashton (137 not out and 4 for 34 against Enterprise in 1993) was the first.

Tom Poulter became the 19th opposing centurion and now greedily averages 256 against the Gents after previous scores of 85 and 71 not out.

Only twice before have a Gent and an opponent scored a hundred in the same game (Cloete and MacDonald, Gents v. St. Anne's Allstars in 2014 and S Desai and Ahmed, Gents v. Close PF in 2015).

The 163 stand between Sanga, Ahmed and Chalamalasetti was the Gents' third-highest ever although it was not a wicket record. That remains 166 between Husain and Kain v. London Saints in 2007.

The draw was only the Gents' ninth (excluding abandonments) in their 550 game history.
